In this issue I'm called to respond to an issue that is almost constantly appearing in my discussions with client's and students and, by the way, one with which I am intimately familiar since I fully and totally embraced the consciousness of being a victim for many, many years.

This issue is of such great concern to me that I am devoting more than one page—speaking to it.

The bottom line with this issue is that you are either in Victim Consciousness- or - you are not. There is absolutely no in-between on this issue.

Embracing the Victim archetype means that everything happens "to you" and that nothing is ever your fault as everything is always based upon something that happened to you to "cause" you to function as you do.

Rather than go on and on about this issue I'm going to use myself as an example.

In my case, I was severely victimized from early childhood through my early adult years. I experienced sexual abuse as early as 3 years of age (the first of my memories and I absolutely know that it wasn't the first time because I was entirely too comfortable with what was happening) through my young adult years by members of my family.

Additionally, I was severely physically abused—being beaten on a regular basis and much of my middle and high school years were spent covering the evidence—when I could do so - and feeling extreme shame.

A note here—There is absolutely NO need to feel "sorry" for me (I did way too much of that myself) because if these things hadn't happened I wouldn't have had the need to learn and explore and therefore wouldn't have searched for the opportunities which have enabled me to be the person I am today! More about this in a bit.

Now, what this really means is that I WAS victimized but being victimized does not mean that you will have a victim consciousness UNLESS you CHOOSE to embrace that particular leg trap.

Yes, I do mean choose!!!! In my case, I can pinpoint the exact moment in time when I made that choice—the details do not matter in this context; however I absolutely did make a choice to become a VICTIM.

I spent many years of my life absolutely believing that I was how I was because of what had happened to me. A portrait for giving power away to others.

"Things" just happened to me and oh, poor me, how and why was this ALWAYS happening. Couldn't anyone see that I was being so taken advantage of and that others (particularly men) were the cause.

GET REAL here Wendi was the answer. Grow up and get over it!!!!!!

"Things" happened to me because I called them too me with my mind-set which was all about "let's all feel sorry for Wendi—poor baby sure has had a rough life".

I constantly gave all my power away because I ALLOWED things from the past to rule my every day life.

Nobody can EVER take advantage of you unless you allow them to do so.

Others do what they do and it is YOUR reaction to what they do that is the problem. Now, this doesn't mean that what they did was ok—as in my case there was nothing "OK" about any of it.

However; it simply means that you can and do CHOOSE to either take what "they" do and say as the gospel truth and recognize them as the absolute authority on YOU—OR— You can CHOOSE to realize that others feelings and what they say about you and their actions have no power over you UNLESS you allow them to have power.

Embracing and living in Victim Consciousness is really a very safe place to be because you never, ever have to take any personal responsibility whatsoever for your actions.

Safe, does not however move you forward into self-empowerment and realization of yourself as an aspect of the Divine Source—a Spiritual Being who is having a Human Experience.

In my case—as in the case with so many men and women and their relationships, men were always “taking advantage of me and it just wasn’t fair”.

In truth this was a direct reflection of the victim consciousness which I had embraced and the fact that the problem was NOT the men and what they did, but the choice that I had made about them in the first place. I was RESPONSIBLE!

The men were who they were and they had always been that. I just refused to see it until it became so apparent that I could no longer ignore it. My choices in men were abysmal and I got just what I had called to me every single time based on what I felt—down deep inside—I was worth or not worth & obviously I didn’t think much of myself.

Nobody did that to me—I choose to base my worth on what had happened to me rather than on who I really was.

Additionally, it enabled me to just reinforce my attachment to the victim archetype since again it was “oh poor me” and that victim consciousness ball of confusion just grew more and more.

I absolutely believe that we CHOOSE everything that happens in our life and that unless and until you embrace self-responsibility you will remain attached to the victim archetype and will never truly grow and transform.

I constantly talk with people who are entangled in situations of their own making and who refuse to make another choice and move on with their lives.

I hear things like:

- “I know that this is a bad situation; but, he/she has so much potential”. GET REAL—unrealized potential is just that—unrealized. Additionally your perception of someone else’s potential isn’t worth the breath it takes to say it. Until one realizes and acts on their own potential—whatever THEY choose for it to be—that potential is unrealized.
- “I’m staying for the kids because I am afraid to go out on my own”. OK, then stay but quit complaining since it is your choice to stay and you are also choosing to succumb to FEAR—which is “FALSE EVIDENCE APPEARING REAL”. All that your kids are learning is that victimhood is OK—Is that what you want for your children?

- “If only my daddy/mommy had loved me more everything would be ok”. GET OVER IT! They loved you to the best of their ability/inability and that is that. I for one am VERY thankful that my parents loved me the way they did/did not because I would have never stepped out of the box without their impetus.

- “They did such a bad thing to me and I just can’t get over it”. Another choice you are making—go ahead, choose to not get over it & continue to give your power away to “them”. A nice and safe place where you never have to claim any responsibility

All of the above are SHINING examples of victim consciousness in action.

I have no right at all to tell you what to do; however, I will say that if any of this “rings a bell” with you then perhaps it is time to take a look at what

Are you a victim with no power, or are you authentically self-empowered and taking responsibility for EVERYTHING in your life?

YOU ARE CREATING in your life and at the choices you have made to NOT be self-empowered.

YOU HAVE THE POWER TO CHANGE ANYTHING.

It may not be easy and you may have to take a really hard look at yourself; however, it is possible for each and every one of us.

MAKE THE CHOICE NOW TO BE WHO YOU ARE BASED ON WHAT IS WITHIN YOU—not on what others say or do or have done.

I constantly work with many people to assist them in releasing victim consciousness and many other issues. UPDATES

PROPOSED SPRING CONFERENCE

Thanks to all of you who took the time to complete the submission form for the proposed Spring conference.

There were many people who indicated significant interest, however; after significant consideration it is apparent that this is not the right time to hold a conference.

The time, energy, effort and expense it takes to hold a conference is enormous and it is apparent that all of the above can be better spent in the coming months for Spreading LIGHT out into the world in other ways.

Rev. Wendi will be personally contacting each of you who indicated interest over the next couple of weeks.

FORMAT CHANGES TO COURSES

Beginning in January 2011 and continuing over the next couple of months, every course which Rev. Wendi authored is being updated and is undergoing format changes.

All the courses will now be offered in the new eBook format and some of them will be offered online.

Every one of the courses will contain added content, new audio files and easier feedback options & many will include videos and more robust photos for ease of use of students.

Additionally, Rev. Wendi is taking more classes to the Home Study Format, including many that she has taught only in LIVE class formats so that more students can take advantage of the courses.

We are also working on several new Supplemental Manuals and an extensive library of meditations and meditation sets.

Please let us know if there are any particular courses which you would like to have offered as we undertake the reformat.
